In particular, the Company and the Client agree that:-
 - (a) The Company will notify the Client of any material change to its business which may affect the services provided by the Company to the Client; and
 - (b) The Client will notify the Company of any change of name or address and provide supporting documents as required by the Company.

2 Client Identity Rule Policy

The Company shall give the Client notice which will specify a date upon which the assignment will become effective. This date will be at least ten days after the date of the notice. Such assignment will have the effect of creating a notated agreement between Client and the entity to which such rights or obligations are assigned. Therefore, in such event, Client hereby consents for any future assignment of this Agreement by the Company.
- 14.14 In the event of war, terrorism, revolution, insurrection, restraint of rules, military disturbances, riot, civil commotion, civil disobedience or other similar action involving any country, strike or lockout or stoppage or restraint of labour, seizure or confiscation of assets or other governmental action having a similar effect, any imposition of currency exchange control or restraint of capital movement or transmission by any government, any "Act of God", epidemic, pandemic, vandalism, disruption of the operation of any stock exchange, breakdown of computer systems and/or communication facilities, or any other similar event outside the control of the Company which hinders or prevents the performance by the Company of its obligations under this Agreement (an "event of force majeure"), then the Company may, as an alternative to any performance otherwise required, at its absolute discretion either (a) postpone its performance until the event of force majeure no longer has such effect or (b) where any delivery or payment is required, provide or require a cash settlement based upon the prevailing price of a security or instrument relevant to such settlement on the second business day prior to the occurrence of the event of force majeure, such prevailing price being conclusively determined by the Company. The Company shall not be responsible or held liable for any loss suffered by Client arising out of or in connection with an event of force majeure. Client agrees to bear solely the risk of such event of force majeure.

Bonds Trading Authorization Letter

Where the Client trades bonds, the following provisions will be applicable. The Client hereby authorizes the Company as his agent to conduct bonds trading on his behalf and agrees to the following terms and conditions.

1) Authorization of trading Bonds

Unless specified otherwise, the Client hereby appoints the Company as his agent to trade bonds on his behalf. The Client has signed the Account Opening Information Form to accept and agree to be bound by the Cash Client's Securities Agreement ("Agreement") with the Company to trade Hong Kong securities and under the same terms and conditions in the Agreement for bonds trading purpose.

2) Settlement

The Client will deposit the net payable to the Company's designated bank account on or before Settlement date. The Company will also deposit the net receivable to his bank account on settlement date. The Client agrees that the safe custody of his bonds will be entrusted to a designated broker of the Company.

3) Trading hours, charges and investment amount

- (a) The Client will refer to the Company website (www.gyzq.com.hk) to view specific trading hours and settlement arrangement, or contact the Customer Service Department at (852) 3769-6828 for most updated information.
- (b) Commission, Safe Custody, Interest Collection and Redemption Fee (if any) vary with different bonds.
- (c) The minimum and incremental investment amount varies from bond to bond. The Client will consult the Company for more details (where necessary).

4) Important Risk Warning

- The Client understands that any bond with a credit rating of 'BBB/Baa' or above by S&P/Fitch/Moody's belongs to investment grade, which means the bond issuer has at least adequate protection parameters to meet its financial commitment on the obligation. The higher the rating, the stronger the issuers' capacity to meet their obligation.
- Bond is an investment product. The Client understands that bond investments are not bank deposits. It is NOT protected under the Hong Kong Deposit Protection Scheme. The Client will not invest in the bond unless the Client fully understands and is willing to assume the risks associated with it. For bonds not listed on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited, any dealings in them are off-exchange transactions, investor will not be covered by any investor compensation fund established to provide compensation in respect of listed securities in the event of intermediary default.
- The Client understands that the bond is subject to both the actual and perceived measures of credit worthiness of the issuer. There is no assurance of protection against a default by the issuer in respect of the repayment obligations. In the worst case (e.g. upon insolvency of issuer), the Client might not be able to recover the principal and any coupon if the issuer defaults on the bond.
- The Client understands that bonds are mainly for medium to long-term investment, not for short-term speculation. The Client should be prepared to invest Client's funds in bonds for the full investment tenor; the Client could lose part or all of Client's investment if the Client chooses to sell his bonds prior to maturity.

- The Client understands that it is the issuer to pay interest and repay principal of bonds. If the issuer defaults, the holder of bonds may not be able to receive back the interest and principal. The holder of bonds bears the credit risk of the issuer and has no recourse to the Company unless the Company is the issuer itself.
- The Client understands that the Company does not guarantee the existence of a secondary market for bonds, therefore the circumstances in which the holder of bonds may be able to realize their investment may be limited, the Client may not be able to sell the bond if the liquidity of the secondary bond market is low.
- The Client understands that if he holds a callable bond, when the interest rate goes down, the issuer may redeem the bond before maturity. If this happens and the Client has to re-invest the proceeds, the yields on other bonds in the market will generally be less favorable.
- Indicative bond prices are available and bond prices do fluctuate when market changes. The Client understands that the rise and fall of a rating influences the corresponding bond price significantly, factors affecting market price of bonds include, and are not limited to, fluctuations in Interest Rates, Credit Spreads, and Liquidity Premiums. The fluctuation in yield generally has a greater effect on prices of longer tenor bonds. There is an inherent risk that losses may be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling bonds.
- The Client understands that trading bonds may have counterparty risk. Counterparty risk means the risk to each party of a contract that the counterparty will not live up to its contractual obligations. The Client understands that counterparty risk should be considered when evaluating the contract.
- The Client understands that if the bond is denominated in a foreign currency, there may be exchange rate risks if the Client chooses to convert payments made on the bonds to his home currency.
- The Client understands that the return on bonds will lose purchasing power if commodity prices go up. Inflation is therefore a serious concern for those who need to rely on the regular income from bonds.
- The Client understands that if the bond is "convertible" or "exchangeable", the holder of bonds also face equity risk associated with the stock. A fall in the stock price will usually cause the bond price fall.
- The Client understands that a corporate event such as a merger or takeover may lower the credit rating of the bond issuer. In case the corporate restructurings are financed by the issuance of a large amount of new debt-burden, the company's ability to pay off existing bonds will be weakened.
- The Client understands that investment decision is Client's but the Client should not invest unless the intermediary who sells it to him has advised him that it is suitable for him and has explained why, including how buying it would be consistent with Client's investment objectives. If the Client is not sure of the suitability of the product, the Client should not subscribe to it.
- The Client should carefully consider whether any investment products or services mentioned herein are appropriate for him in view of his investment experience, objectives, financial resources, risk profile and other relevant circumstances.

It is very important that you should read all the relevant offering documents to fully understand the features and risks of Derivatives Products and the legal terms and conditions of the documentation for such Derivative Product before deciding to invest.

1.1 Issuer default risk

In the event that a structured product issuer becomes insolvent and defaults on their listed securities, investors will be considered as unsecured creditors and will have no preferential claims to any assets held by the issuer. Investors should therefore pay close attention to the financial strength and credit worthiness of structured product issuers.

(Note: "Issuers Credit Rating" showing the credit ratings of individual issuers is now available under the Issuer and Liquidity Provider Information sub-section under Derivative Warrants and under CBBC's section on the Hong Kong Exchanges and Clearing Limited ("HKEx")'s corporate website (<http://www.hkex.com.hk>)).

1.2 Uncollateralized product risk

Uncollateralized structured products are not asset backed. In the event of issuer bankruptcy, investors can lose their entire investment. Investors should read the listing documents to determine if a product is uncollateralized.

1.3 Gearing risk

Structured products such as derivative warrants and callable bull/bear contracts (CBBC's) are leveraged and can change in value rapidly according to the gearing ratio relative to the underlying assets. Investors should be aware that the value of a structured product may fall to zero resulting in a total loss of the initial investment.

1.4 Expiry considerations

Structured products have an expiry date after which the issue may become worthless. Investors should be aware of the expiry time horizon and choose a product with an appropriate lifespan for their trading strategy.

1.5 Extraordinary price movements

The price of a structured product may not match its theoretical price due to outside influences such as market supply and demand factors. As a result, actual traded prices can be higher or lower than the theoretical price.

1.6 Foreign exchange risk

Investors trading structured products with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the structured product price.

1.7 Liquidity risk

The SEHK requires all structured product issuers to appoint a liquidity provider for each individual issue. The role of liquidity providers is to provide two way quotes to facilitate trading of their products. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, investors may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

2 SPECIFIC RISK OF TRADING DERIVATIVE WARRANTS (“DW”)

2.1 Time decay risk

All things being equal, the value of a derivative warrant will decay over time as it approaches its expiry date. Derivative warrants should therefore not be viewed as long term investments.

2.2 Volatility risk

Prices of derivative warrants can increase or decrease in line with the implied volatility of underlying asset price. Investors should be aware of the underlying asset volatility.

3 SPECIFIC RISK OF TRADING CALLABLE BULL/BEAR CONTRACTS (“CBBC”)

3.1 Mandatory call risk

Investors trading CBBC's should be aware of their intraday “knockout” or mandatory call feature. A CBBC will cease trading when the underlying asset value equals the mandatory call price/level as stated in the listing documents. Investors will only be entitled to the residual value of the terminated CBBC as calculated by the product issuer in accordance with the listing documents. Investors should also note that the residual value can be zero.

3.2 Funding costs

The issue price of a CBBC includes funding costs. Funding costs are gradually reduced over time as the CBBC moves towards expiry. The longer the duration of the CBBC, the higher the total funding costs. In the event that a CBBC is called, investors will lose the funding costs for the entire lifespan of the CBBC. The formula for calculating the funding costs are stated in the listing documents.

4 SPECIFIC RISK OF TRADING EXCHANGE TRADED FUNDS (“ETFs”)

4.1 Market risk

ETFs are typically designed to track the performance of certain indices, market sectors, or groups of assets such as stocks, bonds, or commodities. ETF managers may use different strategies to achieve this goal, but in general they do not have the discretion to take defensive positions in declining markets. Investors must be prepared to bear the risk of loss and volatility associated with the underlying index/assets.

4.2 Tracking errors

Tracking errors refer to the disparity in performance between an ETF and its underlying index/assets. Tracking errors can arise due to factors such as the impact of transaction fees and expenses incurred to the ETF, changes in composition of the underlying index/assets, and the ETF manager’s replication strategy. (The common replication strategies include full replication/representative sampling and synthetic replication which are discussed in more detail below.)

4.3 Trading at discount or premium

An ETF may be traded at a discount or premium to its Net Asset Value (NAV). This price discrepancy is caused by supply and demand factors, and may be particularly likely to emerge during periods of high market volatility and uncertainty. This phenomenon may also be observed for ETFs tracking specific markets or sectors that are subject to direct investment restrictions.

4.4 Foreign exchange risk

Investors trading ETFs with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the ETF price.

4.5 Liquidity risk

Securities Market Makers (SMMs) are Exchange Participants that provide liquidity to facilitate trading in ETFs. Although most ETFs are supported by one or more SMMs, there is no assurance that active trading will be maintained. In the event that the SMMs default or cease to fulfill their role, investors may not be able to buy or sell the product.

4.6 Counterparty risk involved in ETFs with different replication strategies

(a) Full replication and representative sampling strategies

An ETF using a full replication strategy generally aims to invest in all constituent stocks/assets in the same weightings as its benchmark. ETFs adopting a representative sampling strategy will invest in some, but not all of the relevant constituent stocks/assets. For ETFs that invest directly in the underlying assets rather than through synthetic instruments issued by third parties, counterparty risk tends to be less of concern.

(b) Synthetic replication strategies

ETFs utilising a synthetic replication strategy use swaps or other derivative instruments to gain exposure to a benchmark. Currently, synthetic replication ETFs can be further categorized into two forms:-

i) Swap-based ETFs

- Total return swaps allow ETF managers to replicate the benchmark performance of ETFs without purchasing the underlying assets.
- Swap-based ETFs are exposed to counterparty risk of the swap dealers and may suffer losses if such dealers default or fail to honor their contractual commitments.

ii) Derivative embedded ETFs

- ETF managers may also use other derivative instruments to synthetically replicate the economic benefit of the relevant benchmark. The derivative instruments may be issued by one or multiple issuers.
- Derivative embedded ETFs are subject to counterparty risk of the derivative instruments’ issuers and may suffer losses if such issuers default or fail to honour their contractual commitments.

Even where collateral is obtained by an ETF, it is subject to the collateral provider fulfilling its obligations. There is a further risk that when the right against the collateral is exercised, the market value of the collateral could be substantially less than the amount secured resulting in significant loss to the ETF. It is important that investors understand and critically assess the implications arising due to different ETF structures and characteristics.

5 SPECIFIC RISK OF TRADING EQUITIES LINKED INSTRUMENT (“ELI”)

ELIs are structured products involving derivatives and its return component is based on the performance of the underlying asset. When an investor purchases an ELI, he is indirectly writing an option on the underlying shares. Investors should pay attention to the points below:

- 5.1 Exposure to equity market - Investors are exposed to price movements in the underlying security and the stock market, the impact of dividends and corporate actions and counterparty risks. Investors must also be prepared to accept the risk of receiving the underlying shares or a payment less than their original investment.
- 5.2 Possibilities of losing investment - Investors may lose part or all of their investment if the price of the underlying security moves against their investment view.
- 5.3 Price adjustment - Investors should note that any dividend payment on the underlying security may affect its price and the payback of the ELI at expiry due to ex-dividend pricing. Investors should also note that issuers may make adjustments to the ELI due to corporate actions on the underlying security.
- 5.4 Interest rates - While most ELIs offer a yield that is potentially higher than the interest on fixed deposits and traditional bonds, the return on investment is limited to the potential yield of the ELI.
- 5.5 Potential yield - Investors should consult their brokers on fees and charges related to the purchase and sale of ELI and payment / delivery at expiry. The potential yields disseminated by HKEx have not taken fees and charges into consideration.

KEY RISKS OF INVESTING IN SHANGHAI-HONG KONG STOCK CONNECT / SHENZHEN-HONG KONG STOCK CONNECT

1) Not protected by Investor Compensation Fund

Investors should note that any Northbound or Southbound trading under Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect will not be covered by Hong Kong’s Investor Compensation Fund.

As for Northbound trading, according to the Securities and Futures Ordinance, the Investor Compensation Fund will only cover products traded in Hong Kong’s recognised securities market (SEHK) and recognised futures market (Hong Kong Futures Exchange Limited, HKFE). Since default matters in Northbound trading via Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect do not involve products listed or traded in SEHK or HKFE, so similar to the case of investors trading overseas securities, they will not be covered by the Investor Compensation Fund.

For further information on Hong Kong’s Investor Compensation Fund, please refer to the website of Investor Compensation Company Limited. For information on licensees and registered institutions under the SFC, please consult the Public Register of Licensed Persons & Registered Institutions in the SFC website.

On the other hand, according to the Measures for the Administration of Securities Investor Protection Fund 《證券投資者保護基金管理辦法》, the functions of China Securities Investor Protection Fund (CSIPF, 中國投資者保護基金) include “indemnifying creditors as required by China’s relevant policies in case a securities company is subjected to compulsory regulatory measures including dissolution, closure, bankruptcy and administrative takeover by China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC) and custodian operation” or “other functions approved by the State Council”. As far as Hong Kong investors participating in Northbound trading are concerned, since they are carrying out Northbound trading through securities brokers in Hong Kong and these brokers are not Mainland brokers, therefore they are not protected by CSIPF on the Mainland.

2) Quotas used up

When the respective aggregate quota balance for Northbound and Southbound trading is less than the daily quota, the corresponding buy orders will be suspended on the next trading day (sell orders will still be accepted) until the aggregate quota balance returns to the daily quota level.

Once the daily quota is used up, acceptance of the corresponding buy orders will also be immediately suspended and no further buy orders will be accepted for the remainder of the day. Buy orders which have been accepted will not be affected by the using up of the daily quota, while sell orders will be continued to be accepted. Depending on the aggregate quota balance situation, buying services will be resumed on the following trading day.

3) Trading day

Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect will only operate on days when both markets are open for trading and when banks in both markets are open on the corresponding settlement days. So it is possible that there are occasions when it is a normal trading day for the Mainland market but Hong Kong investors cannot carry out any A-share trading. Investors should take note of the days Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect is open for business and decide according to their own risk tolerance capability whether or not to take on the risk of price fluctuations in A-shares during the time when Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect is not trading.

4) Restrictions on selling imposed by front-end monitoring

For investors who usually keep their A-shares outside of their brokers, if they want to sell certain A-shares they hold, they must transfer those A-shares to the respective accounts of their brokers before the market opens on the day of selling (T day). If they fail to meet this deadline, they will not be able to sell those A-shares on T day.

5) The recalling of eligible stocks

When a stock is recalled from the scope of eligible stocks for trading via Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect for above-mentioned reasons, the stock can only be sold but restricted from being bought. This may affect the investment portfolio or strategies of investors. Investors should therefore pay close attention to the list of eligible stocks as provided and renewed from time to time by SSE and SEHK.

6) Currency Risk

Investors who hold a local currency other than RMB will be exposed to currency risk if investing in a RMB product due to the need for the conversion of the local currency into RMB. During the conversion, Investors will also incur currency conversion costs. Even if the price of the RMB asset remains the same when Investors purchase it and when Investors redeem / sell it, it will still incur a loss when Investors convert the redemption / sale proceeds into local currency if RMB has depreciated.

7) Mainland Rules and Regulations

When investing in SSE securities through Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect / Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect, Investors should take note of and comply with SSE Rules, SSE Listing Rules and other applicable laws and regulations of Mainland China relating to Northbound trading, including but not limited to prohibition of trading SSE securities and disclosure obligations. Investors are liable and responsible for breaching those laws and regulations. Investors are advised to obtain independent professional advice if there is any question on Mainland rules and regulations.
